About Udney Community Trust Company Limited

Udney Community Trust Company Limited takes its responsibility as an organisation working in and for the community of Udney seriously. We aim to work in ways that give our member and the wider community confidence. That includes how we deal with any personal data that we control and process.

What is personal data?

Personal data is information that could identify a living person. In this case we mean details you fill in on your membership form such as your name, address and email, which, taken together could identify you uniquely.

What personal data do we collect about you?

When you apply to be a member of Udney Community Trust Company Limited we must collect some personal data about you. This is so we can properly record your membership and keep in touch with you. We ask only for as much information as we need to do this: your full name, address and an email address if you have one.

Why do we have to ask for personal data?

We have a legal obligation:

- to hold a register of members and
- to tell all members about certain events (for example General Meetings)

The laws that apply are the Companies Act (2006) and the Charities and Investment Scotland Act 2005.

We also want to communicate with you because it is in the legitimate interest of the organisation. For example, we might, from time to time, issue a newsletter about projects and activities or ask your opinion through a survey.

Do we share your personal data?

Udney Community Trust Company Limited won't share your personal data (except as required by the laws mentioned above) and will only hold it and use it for the purposes mentioned above unless we have asked for your permission to use it from another reason. For example, if you were taking part in a project we might collect your information or ask your permission to use your information for another purpose.

How long will we hold personal data about you?

Your personal data will stay on our Members Register for as long as you are a member and for ten years after your membership ends because this is what the law requires.

Why are we providing you with this information?

The new General Data Protection Regulations or GDPR mean that from 25th May 2018 individuals have new rights about the control and use of their personal data. You can find out more about this from the Information Commissioner's Office website: www.ico.org.uk

If you are unhappy about how we deal with your personal data you can complain to us using our normal complaints process and you can complain to the Information Commissioner's Office at any time.
